About This Game

Duration : approx. 15min

Type : Interactive musical experience

Enter a realm of enchantment with "FIREBIRD - La Péri", and play the role of Iskender, a prince seeking the "flower of immortality". You will appear on the stage, visit the ethereal world of La Péri, and witness a magical and poetic encounter as one of the characters... As you try to take possession of the precious flower, guardian spirits will gradually appear. Strive to get the petals of the flower from them and awaken La Péri, a mesmerizing feminine silhouette covered in light. Her dance will dazzle you, but will you be moved enough to give up immortality and let the Péri live ?

"La Péri" is a VR experience based on classical music and ballet by composer Paul Dukas and starring John Rhys-Davies as the Narrator. It relies heavily on the Vive's hand controllers, and will enable you to interact directly with the characters and creatures which populate this world. In this unique and visually stunning production by the award-winning french VR studio Innerspace, choreography, music, story-line and the most high-end technology will merge into one, producing an extraordinary audio-visual experience.

firebird la peri vr. firebird la peri

A beautiful piece of art. A short but immersive theatrical play.

It's not very interactive but worth the try nevertheless.. La Peri is a beautiful story with great visuals and it is very unique as VR titles go. Bravo!. Awesome setting and feeling of presence, nice short narrative experience. I... regret buying this.

I was hoping for a bit more interactivity when it said "Be part of a visually stunning choreography between two dancers, ***one played by you!***", while when I actually tried it I felt like there was someone dancing around me and I was just a stunned mullet standing in the middle trying to grab some glowing thingy away from them. See, to me that's just stunning choreography of one dancer, not two... It's also really short.

On the other hand, if you want to get up close to watch the choreography in a Ballet it's a good experience.. Wow! Just wow! I don't have the words! I do have an increased interest in ballet, though.. Incredible.Beautiful, poetic and technicaly perfect! If you have enough space it's near possible "dance" with.....(no spoiler here!)

If you are into the more experience based titles, this may be for you. La Peri is very much in the same vein as The Blu, the apolo experience etc.

Pros:

- There wasn't any point where I felt confused with my task, although there is minimal interaction the game does make you feel involved, and succeeds in putting you not just front and center, but in the middle of a ballet experience.
- If you really indulge in the story it can be quite captivating. The narration is excellent.
- Frame rates and performance was great on my gtx970, game seems well optimized.
- There was a good balance between having your feet on the ground and parts where you'd experience vertigo.

Cons:

- The flashlight was annoying, I really just wanted it off for most of the experience and wish I could disable it. Making sure I had it behind my back took a bit away from the experience.
- Wish there were more human dancers, maybe another scene with two dancers or an extra scene... the animals were amazing, but the dancer... WOW... I want more of that!
- Scale seems slightly off with regards to the models, I felt the dancer was too small by 5-10 %.
- Too short. I'm not particularly frugal, but I feel like it could have been longer for my $10 spent. That being said, this caters to a smaller demographic in an already 'petite' VR community... so $10 isn't that absurd if it means I'm supporting these devs.
- End of the game had no prompts... just went black. I didn't know if there was more coming or if it had glitched... just black.
- All of the above is me being nit-picky, if this was twice as long of an experience, it would be perfect IMO.. Personally this was a masterpiece of its own and worth watching at least once.. Very beautiful and extremely short experience. I have to say, I have never been in the middle of a stageplay before, but now I have. It was an emotional piece, and was well done on an artistic standpoint. There was no gameplay to speak of, but a very enjoyable experience. Unfortunately there is no replay value beyond showing someone else. I decided not to refund this game even though I could have, in order to support the developer. 'Tis a nice game.. I feel bad giving this a thumbs down, mostly because I see what they were trying to achieve, it just really fell short of what I expected out of this experience.

The game was broken into multiple sections. The first 3 are INCREDIBLY short (10-15 sec) moments of gameplay, and the final part features the actual dance. They call these sections dances, but the only one where dancing occurs is the last.

As a customer I was expecting multiple dances, and getting to either view the performance as an audience member or up on stage. I didn't care much at all about interacting, I just wanted to see the performance. I would show this game to friends if there were a way to fast forward to the only dance in the game, at the end. It is the only compelling part, sadly :*(
